LMS Jubilee Class 1067 Gillette LMS Jubilee Class 1067 Gillette is a preserved British steam locomotive. As part of the Great Central Railway's schemes to redevelop its locomotive fleet, this locomotive was built in 1915 to work the London to St. Pancras and later the London to York main line. It is named after the civil engineer Edward Gillette, the railway's first chief mechanical engineer. The locomotive was restored and repainted in 1960, and it is currently on display at the National Railway Museum in York. History The locomotive is one of a class of four 3-4-0ST passenger locomotives produced by Harry Ward, of the London Midland and Scottish Railway (LMS) in 1915 as works numbers 1488–1491. The locomotives were specifically designed to work on the Great Central Railway's (GCR) increasingly busy down main between London and York. At the time of the GCR's formation in 1923, the Great Central Railway was leased by the London Midland and Scottish Railway. The locomotives remained part of the GCR's works roster, and until the mid-1960s they would have often seen service. The loco was preserved in 1960 by Dr. T. E. H. Fisk, and was subsequently preserved at the National Railway Museum in York. It was restored at the museum by Robert Mathieson of the Scottish Locomotive Preservation Group and was repainted a yellow livery and became operational on the North Yorkshire Moors Railway in 1963. It has since returned to its original LMS crimson livery and is now on static display at the National Railway Museum in York. For example, if we didn’t have a spiritual mind, we would never have formulated the worthiness to be a servitude, nor the faith to be a hope, nor the trust, nor the desire to be your servant. Why? Because we are not ready! Read the whole article. The precept of discipline is like the yardstick we measure our progress on. The yardstick (spiritual practice) needs to be used regularly so we grow in our improvement. Our ability is hindered without God’s help. We
