yRead Portable Cracked Accounts is a software program whose purpose is to read text documents, custom strings and e-books to you using the default Windows voices. Use it on the fly...Q: Write an Expression Tree Expression or Lambda Expression I have an expression GroupDescriptorBy...Descriptor...(Expression> predicate) that will do this: GroupDescriptorBy.Person.Name.Contains("B").Descendants(...).ToList() My problem is that it takes a property or field name (Expression>) instead of a Lambda Expression. How would I create that without knowing the property or field name? Or, if I knew the property or field name, how would I create a Lambda Expression? A: You can get a lambda from a member info, for example: `MemberInfo mi = typeof(Person).GetMember("Name").First();` Or from an `ExpressionVisitor`, for example: `ExpressionVisitor visitor = new ExpressionVisitor(typeof(Person));` With an expression visitor, the following would get the `MemberInfo` and `Expression` type members: `Expression expr = visitor.Visit(body); MemberInfo mi = expr.Member;` Alternatively you could use an `ExpressionVisitor` to make a lambda: `ExpressionVisitor visitor = new ExpressionVisitor(typeof(Person)); Expression expr = visitor.Visit(body); Func func = expr as Func;` The best approach for a generic function like yours would be to use an `ExpressionVisitor`. A: Taken from the documentation (at `var lambda =` much more! Graft liver lymph node cytotoxic T-cell lines established from rats immunized with syngeneic liver cells. Cells from the popliteal lymph nodes (PLN) of rats immunized with syngeneic hepatocytes exhibited a potent in vitro cytotoxicity against hepatocytes of the same rat. Cytotoxicity was mediated by CD8+ cells. T cells were positively selected by panning on allogeneic hepatocytes. Cytotoxicity was not abolished by treatment with monoclonal antibodies (MoAbs) to rat T-cell receptors (TcR) or by depletion of host-derived NK cells. TcR alpha/beta and gamma delta TcR were found to be expressed on the PLN cytotoxic T-cell lines (CTL) cells. CTL
