Africa Alive: Africa Alive is a BBC radio series that follows big stories and events across Africa. The radio series features interviews with leading African thinkers, politicians and business people. The first series of Africa Alive, an hour long programme, aired in February 2007. BBC Radio 4 Extra Summary: Africa Alive is a weekly show, that covers important issues in Africa - big issues like the refugee crisis, the environment, the oil industry and politics. Produced by Gillian Joseph. For Radio 4 Extra, and published by BBC Worldwide BBC Asian Network: BBC Asian Network is the Asian service of BBC Radio Four. It broadcasts on more than 100 stations. The programmes are produced in London and Dhaka, Bangladesh. BBC Asian Network Summary: This programme is BBC Radio 4's Asian Network offering, presented by Naga Chanu. I think you need to listen in to this programme to realise why I call it his "rightly famous" programme. I just don't have the words for it. Much as I like the channel and love listening to it, I find it hard to listen and think straight - and I'm talking about me there, not about Naga Chanu. BBC Asian Network History: The BBC has been a source of news in Asian countries since it first broadcast to India in 1932. BBC Asian Network History Summary: After years of pioneering broadcasts of many different Asian and Pacific languages, it is fitting that the BBC focuses in on some of the cultural events and trends which have shaped Asia. The BBC has been producing Asian programmes since the early 1930s. BBC Asian Network News: This programme is the Asian service
