The House of Representatives on Wednesday passed a bill that would ensure that all registered sex offenders reported to the National Sex Offender Registration and Notification Program are required to enroll in the program, even those who have been living in states that haven't enacted similar legislation. According to The Washington Post, the House voted 332-83 to approve H.R. 785, the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act. The bill must now be sent to the Senate. In addition to requiring that those under federal mandate to register as sex offenders work to find a state in which they are required to do so, it also will require those who are convicted of a sex offense in that state to report to the sex offender registry there. But some lawmakers aren't pleased with the bill. Rep. Brian Fitzpatrick, R-Pa., told The Hill that he believes the law raises constitutional concerns over due process and states' rights. "I found it concerning that we're going so far as to say that the state of Pennsylvania is not allowed to address this on their own — that Washington has preempted that authority," he said. "If there is a measure to protect the public that is reflective of the values of the citizens of Pennsylvania, we ought to be able to address that and have it addressed on our own." Another House Republican, Rep. Mike Turner of Ohio, told the Post that the federal law "gives prosecutors a nudge" to bring charges. "Prosecutors aren't out to harass and put people in jail unnecessarily, and nobody I know wants to do that," he said. "But, if you are truly a sex offender, you need to be on the registry. You need to be where we can keep an eye on you and protect the public." Rep. Carolyn Maloney, D-N.Y., told the Post that the law is intended to "prioritize the safety of the public over the rights of sex offenders." The

What's new in Elden Ring:

See you in the true lands between!!

I missed this last year. It will now be a part of the game. A post from Nexon regarding Palladion:

"We are happy to announce that the relaunch of Palladion is planned to start this September. This exciting role-playing game is an epic saga that will take players to the world of Garos, thousands of years into the future, and casts you into the role of one of the last of the Garos army heroes. Players will follow the story of several characters that begin their journey as common humans and are launched into the most critical and critical events of their lives. In order to survive in this world, they must leave their past behind and create new destinies and take a strong stance against the evil group that has emerged. To protect their homeland, they will plunge into the forest of Garos and fight the enemy, leader by leader, as a last hope for their destroyed world."

It's looking pretty solid. I'm looking forward to it. Will probably get it when I start the game (I'm likely to keep gaming through the summer or QA as I'll be mostly idle) but I look forward to trying it out for myself if I'm not sick into it. Good to get a look at this game.

OVERLORD MMORPG V2.1 FIXED

My original MMO patch, MMOG, was out for this game as an update. That post is pretty old (I think I was one of the few to report a problem), and one of the OMM2 devs came up with a fix for me.

area, or a hydrophilic area, such that the corresponding coupling agent is retained on the back electrode of the DMD display. If the electrostatic field is maintained on the DMD display for a period of time, the force of the coupling agent holding the retardation film on the DMD display will weaken, and finally the retardation film will separate from the DMD display. This causes the operation of the display to become unstable, or it may cause the black and white images to appear to be colored. To overcome the shortcomings, the present invention provides a method for increasing the stability of a DMD display and a DMD display with such method, where the retardation film of the DMD display has first and second opposite surfaces, and a first coupling agent layer is formed on one of the first and second surfaces, and a second coupling agent layer is formed on the other one of the first and second surfaces. In the operation of the DMD display, the first and second opposite surfaces are maintained under an electrostatic field for a first period of time, and the coupling agent layers within the opposite surfaces are maintained under an electrostatic field for a second period of time. The first and second periods of time are shorter than the time necessary for removing the coupling agent layers from the first and second opposite surfaces.

Ill. Provisions, ch. 8, § 5 (West 1968).) Chicago Title did not assume the obligations under the agreements in the chain of title. Moreover, after negotiation on August 10, 1984, Dana C. sold his interest in the property to Tina R. on September 29, 1984. Tina R. herself then sold the property to plaintiff on June 10, 1985. Therefore, the property was ultimately sold free of encumbrance as of June 10, 1985. Defendant argues that plaintiff held back the consideration of $20,000, the down payment on the house. However, the fact remains that this purchase took place after plaintiff had purchased the property. In order for a purchaser of real estate to be entitled to a return of its purchase price, the property must pass
