Such a tool could be useful in the future to help reduce the potentially catastrophic impacts of flooding, storms, heatwaves and droughts in the UK. The UCL team developed two separate models for the prediction of heatwaves and the effects of storms. The prediction system gives results from the global model, and the local model, which is relevant to Britain, to deliver information on the potential for heat waves and storms to develop. This approach is still at a very early research stage. Such a system could be invaluable in helping people and communities prepare for, and manage, the impacts of changing climate. 2:35 Free Day In Hawaii | Mangrove Girls Presents Free Day In Hawaii | Mangrove Girls Presents Free Day In Hawaii | Mangrove Girls Presents ★• WE ARE FREE ♥★• Save on Gear:
