LOUISIANA & NORTHERN R. CO. et al. District Court, S. D. New York. May 14, 1938. *3 Hermann, Hinda & Rosenthal, of New York City, for libellant. McHugh, Raymond & Hunter, of New York City (Raymond J. McGowan and David P. Miller, both of New York City, of counsel), for respondent Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York. HIRAM C. HALSTEAD, District Judge. This is a proceeding in admiralty to determine the responsibility of a public carrier for damage done to a certain amount of freight by the carrier's train. It was tried on stipulated facts. The respondent railroad company is a New York corporation and has its principal place of business in that state. It has a trackage running through Maine and upstate New York. The libellant is a British corporation which, at the request of the respondent, transported on a through bill of lading certain consignments of freight consigned to "LOUISIANA & NORTHERN R. CO., Terminal Station, New York City, New York." The bill of lading contained a statement that the carrier was subject to "the provisions of the United States Interstate Commerce Act." Upon arrival of the train at the terminal in New York City it had 51 railroad cars in a confused state; and when the wagons were unloaded, on October 16, 1935, ten of the cars were damaged, and fifteen more were seriously damaged. A part of the damage was the result of a derailment on the tracks of the respondent railroad company. The question here is whether the respondent or the respondent's liability insurer is responsible for the damage done. The Interstate Commerce Act under which the respondent railroad company is engaged in transportation is the Commerce Act of March 1, 1887, as amended (U.S.C., Title 49, § 1 et seq.). The provisions of the act applicable to the facts in this case are sections 1, 4, 5, 7, 13, 24, and
